

Welch Gets Supreme Court Nod

SALEM — At a special ceremony on March 5, in Washington, D.C., Attorney Robert W. Welch was admitted to practice law before the Supreme Court of the United States of America. Sponsored by the Boston College Law School where he obtained his law degree in 1966, Attorney Welch was asked to appear before the U.S. Supreme Court with other colleagues to participate in the Admission Ceremony.

Although Welch does not intend to limit his law practice to cases before the Supreme Court of the United States, it is a distinctive honor to be admitted before the Court. Following the Supreme Court ceremony a luncheon was held at the United States Congress. The Dean of Boston College Law School also held a reception in Washington for Welch and the other admittees honored.

Attorney Welch received an AB from Boston College in 1963 and a law degree from that same college in 1966. He is a Director of Eastern Bank and Trust; Trustee, Eastern bank; Corporator, Salem Hospital; and was past president of the Child Guidance Center. He is a member of the Salem, Essex County, Massachusetts and American Bar Associations as well as the Boston Yacht Club.

Attorney Welch's law offices are at 18 Brown St., Salem, where he maintains an active personal and corporate practice.
